BEALE AFB UFO HUNT PHASE 2: THE FINAL PHASE

September 7, 2012, Friday: Tonight is an interesting night. Before heading to Anna Hill's home (which is practically next to Beale AFB), I met up with Etonia Ann Hall. Etonia is from Richmond, but now lives in the Natomas area with her sister. We met up at Jimboys Tacos – 3230 Arena Blvd, Natomas, CA. While I was chowing down on my 3 beef tacos, Etonia tells me that she dated a high ranking airman at Beale AFB. She makes claim that the high ranking airman she was dating would have pillow talk with her and once in a drunken stupor, told her that he knows of an underground complex underneath Beale AFB, that leads to a secret military base inside Mount Shasta and tunnels that will take you to Nellis AFB. From Nellis AFB, the tunnels will take you to Area 51. He makes claim to Etonia, that he went into an elevator shaft that easily fits 50 airmen. When the elevator stops, you will enter a large complex that is a monitoring center for many areas of the world. On a special assignment he was transported in the tunnel and found himself in the depths of Mount Shasta. The unidentified high ranking airman claims that Air Force Intelligence is working with moderate 5.0 Grays. When Etonia tried to question her lover after he became sober, he denied everything. This was the only information I was able to obtain from Etonia. After my meeting, I went straight to Anna Hill's home and Anna's son and I shot a few hoops of basketball, waiting for the sun to go down. After our basketball game, we even captured a snake. Anna's son makes claim that he once witnessed a triangular shaped craft over Beale AFB. As I spied the aircraft flying in and around Beale AFB in my binoculars, I saw no unusual UFO activity, but did sight craft that can possibly be drones flying about the night sky. This is the end of my investigation at Beale AFB. Conclusion: Inconclusive. Note: Anna Hill is the Founder of Angels of Light Paranormal Society.

This article is called HPI: Down the Rabbit Hole. The reason why, is sometimes I feel like I am going down a rabbit hole and I have no idea where it will take me. My nickname is The Demon Warrior. I have been called other names too, like Demon Hunter, the Demonologist and even Demon Slayer. I have been on over 2500 paranormal cases and I run a group called HPI - Halo Paranormal Investigations. Out of 2500 cases, I would say about 1000 cases are so-called "demonic". Out of 10 demonic cases, usually only one case can be considered as demonic, and the rest are some type of mental issue. A lot of my cases are with people that see demonic faces in their carpets or stucco wall. This is more than simple pareidolia, it's a rare disorder that makes people think they're seeing 'demon-like' faces everywhere, with people's eyes and mouths stretched out, ears pointed, and deep grooves carved into their faces. This condition is called Prosopometamorphopsia, the disorder was recently diagnosed in a 59-year-old man, according to a study published in The Lancet. In some of my demonic cases, I had to be very careful and make sure my investigators were safe and protected. Here are some of the bizarre cases I had to deal with.

Demon Warrior

1. The Obese Burlesque Dancers
This case occurred in an apartment in San Francisco. I brought 6 investigators and as soon as they walked into the apartment, they immediately left. The apartment was infested with cockroaches. I placed a bottle of holy water on the counter, and the roaches went after my holy water, because they were thirsty. I had to move my equipment to a safe spot, so no cockroach would hitch a ride through my duffel bag filled with ghost hunting equipment. There were two huge posters of the 2 women of this apartment hanging on the wall. The pictures showed 2 obese women half naked. I asked the ladies, if the ladies on the posters were them? The ladies said "yes" and added this comment: "some men love big women". The apartment was also infested with cats and there were 3 dead cats in the hallway. One of my investigators called animal control and also the SPCA and made a report about the dead cats. The 2 ladies told me that they had several demons in the house. I had to wonder, if a person can live in a house like this, could there be demons involved? The apartment was so filthy and unsanitary, I only could wonder how they could live in this filth? I did a quick house blessing and left. The last time I heard from them, is when they called me and asked me why one of my investigators called animal control. Both women were furious that this call was made. I was happy that one of my investigators took action. This is a case where I was unsuccessful in assisting the clients.

2. The Flashlight Maniac
Another demonic case is when I went to this home in Del Paso Heights, I was greeted at the door by a woman. She brought me into the bedroom where a guy holding a heavy Police Security Blackjack 2AA Flashlight with Tactical LED Ultra Bright power. The guy told me if he turns on his flashlight and pulverizes the wall with his powerful light, a doorway (portal) will open, and demons will come through the portal. I watched this guy for one hour, as he bounces the light off the wall over and over again. He did it so much, that he was pouring down sweat. The portal never opened and then he started getting frustrated and I could see there was anger in his eyes. He started holding the flashlight towards me, in a menacing way. I left immediately and told my investigators, the investigation is over, we have to leave. I felt this guy with this heavy-duty flashlight was a serious threat and that someone may get hurt. I didn't want to be bludgeoned to death, nor did I want my investigators to face a possible threat like this. I had my investigators vacate the house as quickly as possible and go straight home. Two weeks later, I hear about this very same guy getting into an altercation at a bar and was arrested for hitting a patron over the head with a wine bottle. This was another case in which I was unsuccessful.

3. The Hoarder
The home is in Berkeley. When we arrived, there was garbage everywhere. We had to navigate through tons of garbage. There were narrow walkways through walls of garbage. The couple (an older man and his very young wife) removed the toilet out of the bathroom and because of that, they defecate in the garage. Sometimes, their evening out is to go to a gas station, so they can utilize the gas station's bathroom. This is another case, where we left early. The place was so disgusting, I didn't even bless the house. Results: Unsuccessful.

4. The Racist
The case was in Pleasanton, and the client was a non-stop talking racist. We brought along an African American investigator and the client kept making racist remarks and even discussed lynching. Things got so bad with us listening to his racist comments, we had to leave. Results: Unsuccessful.

5. The Feces Slinger
The house is in Sacramento. When we got there, on the living room wall was globs of feces everywhere.

The male client had the tendency of throwing his feces on the wall. When we saw that, one of our investigators had to step outside and throw up. We left immediately. Results: Unsuccessful.

6. Batter Up!
At this demonic case in Stockton, CA. The client's faces started distorting and one of the clients chased me out of the house with a baseball bat. This case I truly believe was demonic, because their faces really did distort into something sinister and evil. Results: Unsuccessful.

7. Satan's Tattoo.
This case was in Marysville, and the male client had the face of Satan tattooed on his back. One of my investigators (a bay area police officer) captured 3 EVPs in which a male entity was telling her, how he was going to kill her. She freaked out so bad, she left immediately. About 2 weeks later, I went to her house to give her a full submersion baptism (a basic form of exorcism). I also performed a Roman Catholic house blessing on her home. Whatever demonic attachment that she had, left after my baptism. This case I felt was real. Results: Successful.

8. The Shower Crawler
This is another case, where I believe that a real demon possessed our client. On this case, I brought along 4 investigators. The client, a woman in her mid-30s was telling us about the horrible experiences she has had with a demon. When she told her story, her face started distorting, then she started ripping off her clothes. She was yelling that her body was burning up, it was hot. She heads to the bathroom screaming her lungs out. Then she got on the edges of the shower and started climbing up the shower wall. We had to get her down, so she wouldn't hurt herself. I gave the client a full submersion baptism and did a Roman Catholic house blessing. 5 months later, she contacted me on Facebook and said that my team and I, saved her life. She no longer has a demonic attachment and is now a motivational speaker in Hawaii. Results: Successful.

9. The Bruiser.
This case was in Citrus Heights. A woman in her mid-50s, small, petite became possessed by a demon. She was yelling and screaming and went into convulsions. This woman threw a 6' 2" muscular man (her cousin) against the wall. Very intense investigation. Results: I was successful with my full submersion baptism.

These are the demonic cases that I will always remember. Some I was successful with and some I was not. When a person says they have an attachment, they need a full submersion baptism, which is a basic form of exorcism. Even if you think it is a mental issue, still suggest a full submersion baptism. The baptism may just be a placebo effect and in most cases that placebo effect will most likely have a positive effect on the client. I perform a Roman Catholic house blessing using a crucifix and holy water. Most of my house blessings are successful. Whatever way you conduct a house blessing, just do it. It's important for the client. When doing a demonic case, use extreme caution.

Haunted Turks & Caicos Islands

Paul Dale Roberts, HPI's Esoteric Detective
Halo Paranormal Investigations

Several locations in the Turks and Caicos Islands are rumored to be haunted, including the District Commissioner's House on South Caicos, the historic Waterloo building in Grand Turk, and Bambarra on Middle Caicos. These legends are often associated with the islands' colonial history and the experiences of enslaved people, with stories of full body apparitions and ghostly presences reported at these sites. My father Paul Marceau Roberts heard from the locals that the whole island is haunted. Locals and tourists have seen the spirits of slaves from long ago. Green Corn folk of all ages were asked by tourists what is haunted at North Caicos and they all said the entire island. From ghosts in the air at night, to them taking a leisurely stroll on the beach and seeing spirits walking along the beach. Let's look at some of the places that have a reputation of being haunted.

The Cheshire Hall Medical Centre
Cheshire Hall (the plantation, not the area) is located a mere few minutes from the hospital. Ghostly slaves are seen in the fields by locals. Cheshire Hall is said to have been quite a large plantation and is teeming with ghostly activity. If you plan to do any ghost hunting at this location, you must be advised that only a percentage of it is accessible today. The accessible areas were primarily the living quarters and work areas of its residents.

Ianthe Pratt Primary School
Following this thought of areas where people were once buried being haunted, I have been told that IPPS has had its fair share of spooky happenings. There have been reports of missing items and doors opening unexpectedly. This information comes from past students. My step-mother when visiting the islands with my father was told about places being haunted by "Jumbees". Jumbees is a term for spirits or mythical beings often found in Caribbean folklore. They are mentioned in association with the islands. A Jumbee is a mythological spirit, demon, or ghost from the folklore of Caribbean cultures, often depicted as a shadowy, malevolent entity but also referring to a variety of supernatural beings. While some Jumbees are believed to be the spirits of wicked individuals, others can be benevolent, such as the Moko Jumbee, a stilt-dancer representing a watchful, protective deity from West African traditions. The term is a catch-all for these spirits and is popular in stories told across the English-speaking Caribbean, with different islands having their own variations and names for these beings. Ianthe Pratt Primary School is haunted by benevolent Jumbees.

Salt Cay

Government House

Some locals believe that the Government House is haunted by malevolent Jumbees. Things get moved around, things wind up missing and then they reappear. Some locals have been scratched by unseen forces. Zola, a local had a malevolent entity whisper in her ear, telling her to drown in the ocean. Zola believes it was a bad Jumbee. Surprisingly, the malevolent Jumbee are the most common type, characterized by their dark, shadowy figures and association with evil deeds or wicked individuals. Perhaps the Jumbee(s) are feeding off the negative energy that radiates from the Government House. Perhaps there were some evil politicians that worked at the Government House?

The White House

This building has been around since the early 1800s. Three people have died there, and the place was erected prior to the Slave Emancipation Act, so who knows what heinous crimes were committed there. Tourists have heard muffled screaming coming out of this building. A hideous shadow being was seen hiding in the bushes.

Wades Green Plantation at Kew Settlement
According to the locals, this place is protected by the Plantation Watchers. On some parts of the plantation where there are no Watchers, the land is haunted by the Bacoo, a mischievous spirit resembling a leprechaun. Other hauntings on this land are the "Soucouyant". The Soucouyant is a blood-sucking, shapeshifting female vampire from Caribbean folklore that transforms into a fireball at night to drain the blood of unsuspecting victims, leaving them weak or dead. By day, she appears as an ordinary woman, often an old recluse, and must hide her shed skin in a mortar before sunrise or risk it being burned by the sun. To defeat a Soucouyant, people would spread rice or salt at village crossroads, forcing her to stop and count grains, or sprinkle salt on her discarded skin to prevent her from returning to it.

Cheshire Hall Plantation at Providenciales
This plantation is haunted by the Lagahoo. The Lagahoo is a feared, mythical shapeshifting monster from Trinidadian folklore, also known as the Loup Garou (French for werewolf). By day, it appears as an old man, but at night it roams the shadows as a monstrous figure with no head or a large animal. It is said to drag heavy, rattling chains and carry a wooden coffin on its neck, which it uses to feed on blood and oil. To defeat a Lagahoo, one must beat it with a stick anointed in holy water or oil.

Middle Caicos
Bambarra
Bambarra is the one settlement in the TCI with an African name. The name was given by the slaves who were brought there. Bambarra is famous for its Bambarra Rum. It literally boasts of being “the spirit of the Turks and Caicos,” and what’s featured on the bottles? Jumbees. If there is an area to go to for haunted happenings in Middle Caicos, Bambarra is definitely the place to be. Shadow people have been reported at Bambarra.

Over Island
Over Island was once used as the location of the Ex-Servicemen Legion's building, most people only visited Over Island on Armistice Day, when the Ex-Servicemen would lay a wreath to commemorate the end of World War I. Many bodies are buried at this island. There are many sightings of ghosts. There are sightings of ghosts with military uniforms on. Sightings of ghosts is to be expected.

East Tar Road, towards Public Cemetery
There is a story of a man driving down the road near the cemetery and he picked up a hitchhiker that was carrying a guitar. The hitchhiker said to the driver that he was playing his guitar at the crossroads. He then played a song, and the driver told the hitchhiker that the melody was beautiful. The hitchhiker laughed and said..."I could play even better when I was alive." The driver was stunned at what he said and looked over and the hitchhiker had vanished. This story almost sounds like the legendary blues musician Robert Johnson story.

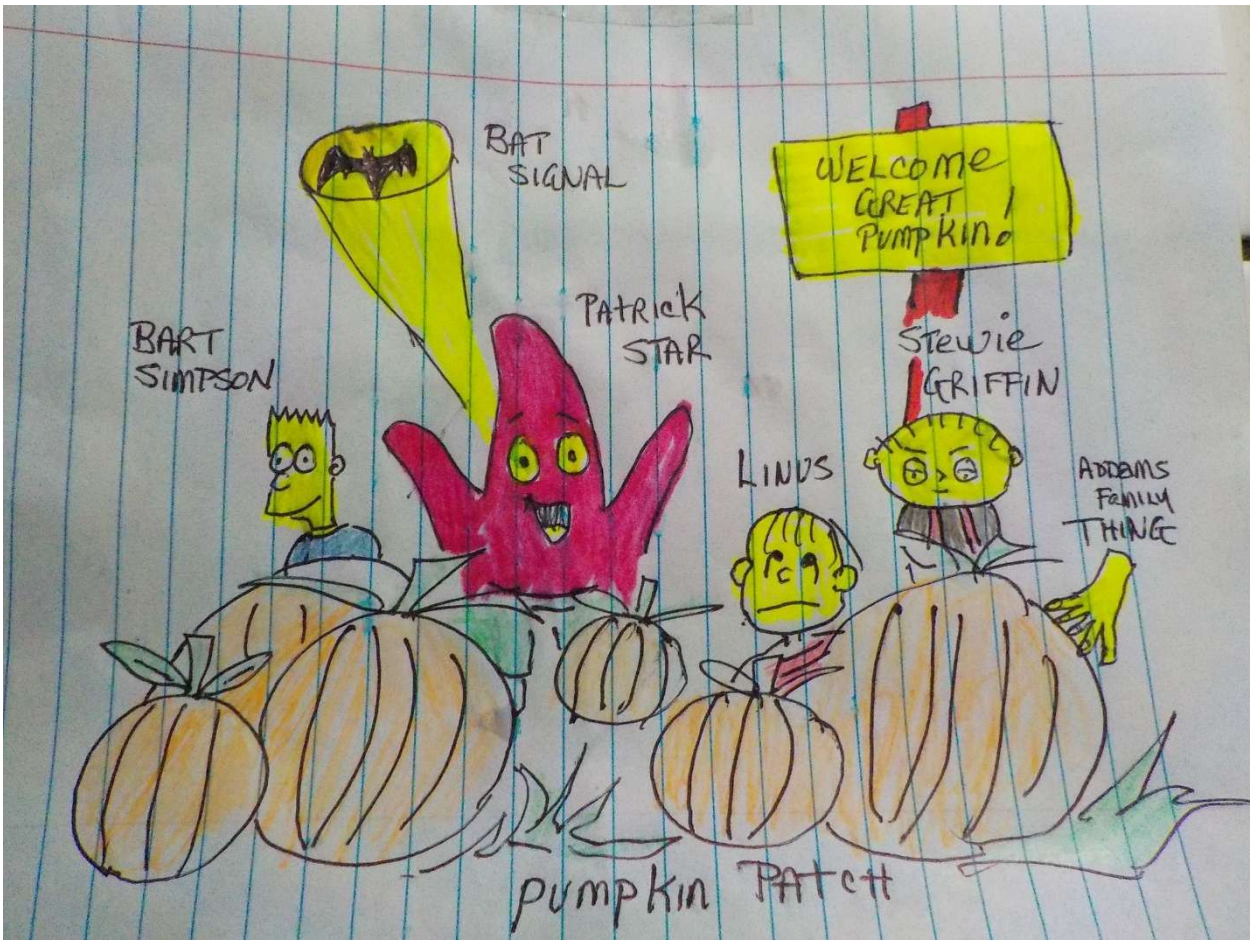
Waterloo
The official home of the Governor is haunted. The home is haunted by what locals call "creepy old ladies". There are 3 old ladies in wrinkly old dresses that appear and disappear. They are known to move objects around. They have wrinkly faces and one of the creepy ladies has an unusual long nose. A caretaker was touched by one of the creepy old ladies and he said the touch was cold as ice.

District Commissioner's House, South Caicos:
The site where a decaying body was discovered, gives the location an eerie reputation. Misick, a local saw a ghost that looked like a zombie walking around and then vanishing.

Cockburn Town and Providenciales
These locations are haunted by Benevolent Jumbees. One of the Jumbees is the Moko Jumbee, seen in the Moko Jumbee tradition, is a stilt-dancer that is considered a healer and protector, a positive example of a Jumbee figure. Aisha, a local was having a medical issue and did some praying near the Cockburn Town. Aisha was visited by a Moko Jumbee that touched her face and disappeared. The next day her medical issue was gone. Aisha believes she was healed by the Moko Jumbee.

Protecting yourself from Bad Jumbees:
Folklore provides several ways to protect oneself from Jumbees. These include:
Leaving a pile of salt or rice outside the house for them to count.
Walking backward into your home to prevent a Jumbee from following you inside.
Leaving shoes outside the door to distract them with the task of trying them on.
Crossing a river, as Jumbees are believed to be unable to cross water.

NEXT DRAWING: Linus at the Pumpkin Patch, waiting on the Great Pumpkin. Linus has a few friends with him. They are: Bart Simpson, Patrick Star, Stewie Griffin, Addams Family Thing. Also, Linus is getting tired of waiting and has placed the Bat Signal up into the night sky, hoping that Batman will help him locate the Great Pumpkin. Art by PDR.



DIARY EXCERPT (I had to put this in, unbelievable).
9/13/2025 Saturday. Deanna, Champagne, Ire and I, went to:
Panda Express at Delta Shore and we met up with Deanna's mother Jodi Myers. I bought them both lunch from Panda Express. My dogs met Jodi's 2 Chihuahuas. I gave my dogs a ride in Hobby Lobby shopping cart. Deanna walked home from Dunstan. Got home and walked the dogs to Merwin F. Rose Park and we sat in the grass, underneath a shade tree. Got home and Deanna was burning a big fire in the fire pit, black smoke. An Asian neighbor knocked on my door and said he called the fire department. 6 fire trucks showed up, and all of the neighbors were outside watching, including Gregory James and Justin Beltramo and his family. The fire department aired out the house and gave me 4 free smoke detectors. When the fire department left, I went out and washed my car. Deanna was burning her shoes and it caused a huge fire. Very embarrassing moment.

Haunted Vermont

Paul Dale Roberts, HPI's Esoteric Detective
Halo Paranormal Investigations

When I went on my Boston, Massachusetts vacation with my wife Deanna, we rented a car and drove all over the place. Somehow, I got lost and found myself driving on the freeway in the state of Vermont. The first thing that popped in my head was that we were lost and we need to make a quick u-turn and get back to Massachusetts! We had an appointment in Salem, Massachusetts for the Salem History Tour, in which I already paid for online. Fortunately, we made it to our destination. After I got home, I wanted to know more about Vermont. What were some of the historic haunted sites in Vermont? Well, this is what I found out.

The Equinox Resort (Manchester) was completed in 1769, this historic hotel is considered one of Vermont's most haunted places. Housekeepers and staff have heard unexplained noises and experienced rapid changes in air temperature. Items have been reported to disappear from one place and reappear elsewhere, such as ice chests and chairs being found piled up like a pyramid. One documented incident involved a guest whose keys were found separated from their chain and scattered across the room after they briefly stepped out. Some staff have reported odd phenomena involving multiple scents on the third floor and in the south wing. The scents can be anything from various food smells or fragrant smells. One guest smelled rotten fish. There have been claims of furniture moving on its own. The resort was a popular summer getaway for the Lincoln family, and it's said that the spirits of Mary Todd and one of her sons can be seen in the resort's halls.

The Old Stagecoach Inn (Waterbury) was built in 1826, this inn is rumored to be haunted by several ghosts, including a former resident named Margaret Annette Henry Spencer, also known as Nettie. Daniel Wackenhut, a tourist from Syracuse, New York says that Nettie on one night was sitting on the foot of his bed, she was singing a lullaby. Daniel was frozen in fear and then he saw at the corner of his room a little red-haired girl in pigtails giggling. Daniel managed to get 2 words out, he said STOP IT! Both apparitions disappeared.

Hartness House Inn (Springfield) is a historic inn, built by inventor James Hartness. It has a spooky underground tunnel system. Visitors claim that objects disappear, reappear in different places, and that the electricity goes out for no reason. One of the most talked-about haunting stories involves the "Lindbergh Room." Guests and staff have reported encounters with a ghostly presence in this room, which was named after pilot Charles Lindbergh, who was a personal friend of Hartness. The inn's staff and guests have passed down stories of a general "resident ghost" that haunts the property. The paranormal energy is most commonly reported in the original mansion's guest rooms. The underground tunnels were a strange and innovative project by James Hartness, who used them as a private office. The tunnels are also the rumored location of some of the inn's haunting activity. A long-haired blonde woman in a green robe is sometimes seen floating around in the tunnels. A former employee of the inn says that the blonde-haired woman ghost is the former mistress of James Hartness. The tunnels lead to a telescope observatory designed by Hartness. The blonde-haired woman ghost has been seen by the observatory.

The Marble Mansion Inn (Fair Haven) is haunted. Guests have reported waking up to seeing a man in a gray suit at the foot of their beds. One child was terrified when the Man in the Gray Suit was looking down on him, while he laid in bed. The Man in the Gray Suit wasn't smiling, not blinking his eyes, he was just staring at the child. When the child screamed, the apparition faded away. Then there are sounds of ghostly children running through the halls. One guest saw 3 ghostly children laughing running into an empty room. When the guest investigated, there were no children in the room.

The Norwich Inn (Norwich) was established in 1797, this inn is reportedly haunted by two ghosts. The first one is Mary, the wife of a former innkeeper who died in a fire. Guests and staff have experienced hearing footsteps, doors opening and closing, and sudden chills. Then the 2nd ghost is "Ma Walker," a Prohibition-era conductor of an illegal alcohol train who remained at the inn after her death. The ghost is said to haunt the inn, with Room 21 being a favored spot for her presence.

The Quechee Inn at Marshland Farm (Quechee) is haunted by John and Jane Porter, who bought the house in 1845.

As you can see Vermont is a very haunted State. There are so many other places in Vermont that are haunted, like Emily's Bridge (Stowe). This place is also known as Gold Brook Covered Bridge. This bridge is legendary, due to the haunting activity at this bridge. According to legend, a young woman named Emily was waiting at the bridge for her lover when he never arrived. In her despair, she jumped to her death. Visitors have reported hearing noises, seeing apparitions, and even having their cars scratched by her spirit. Dana Carter of El Paso, Texas heard splashing in the water, she looked down into the water and saw nothing that could have made that splash. Dana believes that was Emily. Then there is Wilson Castle (Proctor). This Victorian castle dates back to the 19th century, Wilson Castle has a long history of paranormal reports. Staff and visitors have reported seeing a variety of apparitions and other strange phenomena. Eddie Rochelli from New Hampshire encountered the Custodian Helmet Cop. Eddie says that it was a full body apparition of a 19th century police officer wearing a Custodian Helmet. This ghost was tapping the walls with his billy club (baton). Eddie thought it was an actor, only to see the apparition disappear as it approached him. Another haunted place is the Shelburne Museum (Shelburne). The Dutton House on the museum's grounds is haunted by an elderly man and a young girl. Several people have reported seeing and hearing the ghostly figures. Some of the disembodied conversations are full paragraphs. Tourists say you can hear them talking, but can't make out the words.

Last but not least is the Bennington Triangle, this is a place for mysterious disappearances and other strange paranormal phenomena. Some people say the Bennington Triangle has portals to other dimensions. There is also an unusual amount of UFO sightings at the Triangle. Then we have the University of Vermont (Burlington). Founded in 1791, the campus has a number of reportedly haunted buildings. For instance, Converse Hall is said to be haunted by a student ghost named "Henry," who died by suicide in the 1920s. Another ghostly place is the Vermont Police Academy (Pittsford). This location was formerly a state hospital for tuberculosis patients. The ghost of a nurse named Mary, who is believed to have died of the disease, is said to haunt the premises. She will walk up to you and smile. If you want to see ghostly miners, stop by Glastonbury Ghost Town (Glastonbury): This abandoned logging town has been the site of numerous disappearances and ghostly apparitions appearing and disappearing. West Castleton (Rutland County) is a 1800s slate-mining town and is also haunted by ghostly miners. Disembodied screaming has also been heard at West Castleton.

How I Investigate the Paranormal
Paul Dale Roberts, HPI's Esoteric Detective
Halo Paranormal Investigations

My group is HPI International (Halo Paranormal Investigations). Our method of investigating is different from many paranormal groups. I have now been on over 2500 investigations and the methods below have been very successful for my group. You can see some of our methods below, Happy Hunting!

ORBS - INTELLIGENT MOVEMENT
Orbs can be almost anything, from lint, dust, skin flakes, dew drops, light refractions, etc. How can you tell an orb is an actual SCF (Spiritual Containment Field)? Answer: Intelligent Movement. Case example: My group investigated a home in Sacramento. The home was haunted by a female ghost named

Emily. Emily was known to drain the energy from the clients. One of my investigators said he felt "drained" and needed to sit down. I then wondered..."is Emily draining his energy?"
I then told Emily, if you are listening to me, kiss him on the mouth. With 3 cameras, we capture an orb on his mouth. This showed me that Emily was listening and followed my command. I then said..."Emily, if you are listening to me, sit on his lap." With one camera, I capture an orb hovering over his lap. This showed "intelligent movement" and I was able to deem this as paranormal. When I investigate a home, I will place my hand on the wall and ask the entity to appear by my hand. If the house is haunted, there will be an orb on my hand.

DESIGNER ORBS

Designer orbs are the orbs with intricate designs inside them. When the photos are enhanced, you can sometimes see a face inside the orb. In one of my cases, in Del Paso Heights, I snapped a photo of the client's backyard. I captured 2 designer orbs in the client's backyard. I enhanced the photo of the 2 designer orbs. What I saw were dog faces in the 2 designer orbs. I asked one of my investigators what they see in the designer orbs and they said: "dog faces". I went back to the client and asked what she had in her backyard and she said: "orange trees". I said..."not the orange trees, what else do you have back there?" She said..."my 2 dogs are buried back there". I told her..."look at this photo, what do you see?" She starts to cry. I ask her what is wrong, why are you crying? She says..."those are my 2 dogs!" Something like that I can deem as paranormal.

LIVING GHOSTS/RESIDUAL ENERGY

In 1974, Chicago, Illinois, a family moves into a new home. While living there, around 2am, they would see a man manifest and walk over to the couch. A woman would manifest sitting on the couch. The male ghost is seen slapping the woman ghost and then they disappear. The family saw this about 3 different times. One day the family attends the neighborhood block party. The host says "we do this every year, here are photos from our past events." The lady of the house, flips through the photos and comes to one photo and says..."Oh my god, these are the ghosts in my house!!" The host says.."ghosts?" The host continues to say: "This couple in the photo are not ghosts, they did live in your house, there was domestic disputes, the police were there all the time, they are not ghosts, they got a divorce and the lady lives 5 blocks down the road and her former husband lives out of state, they are very much alive!!" This is a case of negative residual energy that has imprinted the atmosphere, a case of living ghosts. We have many cases like this, where the ghosts are not deceased people, but people that are still very much alive.

ROMAN CATHOLIC HOUSE BLESSINGS

I conduct Roman Catholic house blessings using holy water and a crucifix. I am about 85 percent successful with my house blessings. If the client is another type of religion, I usually have an investigator that can do a specialized cleansing. We respect all religions. In the past I had investigators that were able to conduct the following types of cleansings: Miwok Native American, Buddha, Hindu, Christian, Wicca, Voodoo, Greek Orthodox.

GADGETS & PSYCHICS

My team will bring all kinds of gadgets for our paranormal adventures, from EMF Readers, audio recorders, night vision cameras, spirit boxes, thermo meters, dowsing rods, Kinect. We also use a team of psychics. These tools, including psychics, are just that "tools". We must prove the existence of the paranormal with either a clear Class A EVP, full body apparition in our photos or show intelligent orb movement. If a psychic says there is a ghost standing in the corner, it is up to the investigator to prove that by either capturing a clear EVP or capturing a photo of an intelligent moving orb or an apparition.

FULL SUBMERSION BAPTISMS - A BASIC FORM OF EXORCISM

If a client says they have an "attachment" I will perform a full submersion baptism on the client. This is a basic form of exorcism. An attachment will automatically leave after the full submersion baptism. I am 95 percent successful. If the client feels they have an attachment and it might be a mental situation, the baptism is still good for a placebo effect.

EVP - CLASS A

A Class A EVP is great evidence. Clear message that everyone can understand. No background noise, chatter, etc. Witnesses are present during the EVP capture. We usually do a "quick and dirty" EVP session. We say something simple like..."is there anyone here?". We pause, give the entity time to talk and then play back. Sometimes we will get a response like: "I'm right here." Our group doesn't use Spirit Box responses as evidence. People hear what they want from a spirit box. I allow my investigators to use their spirit box, but whatever is captured by a spirit box is not used as evidence. Only EVPs are used as evidence, and it must be a Class A EVP.

NEXT DRAWING: UAP/UFO at the Tower Bridge, Sacramento, CA

UFO over Sacramento. Photo taken on 5/12/2012. Submitted to HPI. The photographer says he saw the object for a few seconds and then it just vanished. The photographer asked me to keep his identity confidential. He is afraid of being ridiculed. Special Note: The object is close to the Tower Bridge. 6 people claim they saw Mothman on top of the Tower Bridge. The story was featured on History Channel's Monsterquest. Is it possible that this UAP/UFO could be connected to the sighting of Mothman at the Tower Bridge?

WTF

NEXT PHOTO: 28 YEARS LATER. A great zombie show!! Watch it, when you have the chance! The Alpha Zombie is pretty scary. What is interesting is that these zombies with the Rage Virus are super-fast and athletic. Not your slow type of zombies.

Haunted Calaveras County Museum
Message from Christian Appel to Paul Dale Roberts
Sidenote from Paul.

From Christian Appel
Received a message from Christian Appel, former paranormal investigator for HPI (Halo Paranormal Investigations. This is what he said:
Checking with you guys to see if you are interested in joining me at the Calaveras County Museum in San Andreas. Apparently, the historical Creator there has told me that the museum is very haunted. So much so that when you enter the place the staff has to acknowledge certain relics in the building, and if this isn't done, the atmosphere is really off. One of the strangest stories that I was told about the museum was the fact that in the upstairs office there are relics from Lake Camanche. One of the staff members placed a Protestant Jesus statue in the room and it caused all sorts of poltergeist activity. Another strange story which kind of sort of makes sense to me. The Museum Creator told me that he went down to the basement, and he was looking through the boxes of different artifacts. As he's going through this stuff he finds some handcuffs. He picks up the handcuffs and he said within seconds he felt dizzy and had a stomach-ache. I told him it sounded like those handcuffs had some kind of attachment to them.

My Thoughts (from Paul Dale Roberts)
Yes, the handcuffs probably have bad energy that is connected to the handcuffs. My team and I have been to the Museum and 2 of my psychics felt an imbalance via vertigo. We stopped at the museum, on our way to Murphys to conduct an investigation. Chantel, a former investigator, captured 3 Designer Orbs in her photos. We captured no EVPs. One of my investigators claims that he was touched on his arm.

The Ghost Says "4 Years"

Paul Dale Roberts, HPI's Esoteric Detective
Halo Paranormal Investigations

Date of Paranormal Hotline Call: 9/18/2025, Friday
Time of Call: 1100 Hours Pacific Time

Client's name: Cheryl & her grand-daughter Sienna
Location: Elk Grove, CA
Type of Home: Owned by Cheryl (the client) - 2 story home.

Paranormal Activity: Most of the paranormal activity in this home is centered on Sienna (the grand-daughter). Sienna is 13 years old. The paranormal activity started when Cheryl and Sienna were living in San Leandro, CA. The house in San Leandro was built in 1936. They moved to Elk Grove, and it appears the entity in the San Leandro home, followed them to Elk Grove. The activity has now been happening for 1 1/2 years. The activity went to mild activity to more aggressive activity. Sienna would hear knockings coming out of her closet. Sienna and Cheryl thought maybe it was Sienna's deceased father was trying to communicate with her. Her father died of a drug overdose. Sienna has seen a tall shadow entity. Sienna while in the kitchen saw a full body apparition of a man, with blood on his shirt. The entity had what appeared to be a broken jaw. Sienna says it was not her father.

What really scared Sienna is when she was lying in bed, she felt somebody lying in bed with her, whispering in her ear. Sienna got up and looked in the mirror and her face was distorted and missing her mouth. Cheryl, while home alone heard a female disembodied voice coming out of the bathroom and the voice was saying "mommy". Sienna has also saw a creepy small shadow being walking around the house.

I will be conducting an investigation of the house on Friday. I will conduct an EVP sweep, to see if I can capture any EVPs. I will be taking a series of photos in the house, to see if I can capture any anomalies in my photographs. If I capture any orb activity, I will see if the orb follows my commands and I will be checking for "intelligent movement". I will provide Sienna with a full submersion baptism, which is a basic form of exorcism, in case Sienna has an attachment. I will also provide a Roman Catholic house blessing. I will also give Cheryl some blessed candles and holy water.

Date of Investigation: 9/19/2025, Friday. Time: 1400 Hours.
Received a briefing from Cheryl about the paranormal activity happening in her home. Cheryl has 9 beautiful cats that live in this cozy home with a gorgeous swimming pool in the backyard. Cheryl tells me there was one day that all the cats got spooked out about something and all 9 cats hid underneath the bed. The cats may have picked up on the entity. Cheryl lead the way, as I did an EVP sweep of the house. We did EVP sessions in each room and took pictures in every room to see if I can capture any anomalies in my photos. I checked my photos after the investigation, and I captured no anomalies in my photos. We did a lot of EVP sessions and finally captured an EVP in the laundry room. The EVP sounded like a man's voice that says "4 years". I was told that 4 years ago is when Sienna's father passed away. I was told this after the family listened to the EVP many times over.

I conducted a full submersion baptism for Sienna. The baptism was done in the swimming pool. Before I did the baptism, I blessed the water with holy water and prayers. I also provided the family with palo santo wood (4 sticks) and some blessed candles, provided by Wish Fire, Psychic Medium. I conducted a Roman Catholic house blessing. The house is 2 stories, with an attic and crawlspace. I covered everything. My assessment is that Sienna does not have an attachment, but I gave her a baptism to safeguard her from an entity intrusion. I believe Sienna may have psychic abilities and she may have the gift of being able to see entities. Sienna may be a beacon of light that attracts entities to her, like a moth to a flame. I didn't detect any negativity in this home. Sienna may be watched by her deceased father or perhaps a family spirit. I will be doing follow-ups on this case, to make sure that everything is back to normalcy.

HAUNTED THIMMAPPANA BETTA (TWIN ROCKS) INDIA

My neighbor Hassan is from India, and he tells me that when he was a little boy walking with his father near the Thimmappana Betta (Twin Rocks), he witnessed 3 ghostly figures of Hindu Priests near the Twin Rocks. They were performing a ritual and then vanished. Hassan's father said they were dressed in 18th century priest garb. Hassan and his father were shocked to have encountered these ghosts near the Twin Rocks. Hassan says that the Twin Rocks are definitely haunted, because he witnessed it. Next picture is of the Twin Rocks.

The Holloko Castle Witch
Paul Dale Roberts, HPI's Esoteric Detective
Halo Paranormal Investigations

Former tour guide Adony Farkas says that Holloko Castle in Hungary is one of the most haunted castles in Eastern Europe. The dominating ghost of the castle is the Holloko Castle Witch. There have been many sightings of this witch. The castle is filled with ancient history. Locals and tourists have heard disembodied screams coming from the land around the castle. Locals have seen Mongols on horseback. The Mongols did invade the area known as Holloko village. After the invasion from the Mongols, construction of the castle commenced to protect the area from future attacks. The Kacsics noble clan took control of the castle, according to records that date back to 1310.

The horror of war did not end with the Mongols. In 1552, The Ottomans captured the castle. For the next 150 years control alternated between Ottoman and Hungarian forces. There were skirmishes between the Ottoman empire and Hungarian forces. Dominik Szabo, a local tourist remembers seeing ghostly soldiers from the Ottoman empire march along the horizon from the castle and then melted away in the sunlight. Dominik Szabo a paranormal enthusiast has visited the castle on several occasions, but the day he saw the ghostly soldiers, made him a believer in the afterlife. He was able to determine that they were Ottoman soldiers from their clothing attire. Dominik is also a history major. In 1987, the castle ruins, and surrounding area were inscribed as a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

Paloma Adam, a former grounds keeper says that people have seen some very strange ghosts at the castle. Paloma says believe it or not, there is a ghostly giant black bulldog that is seen walking around the castle. Some people feel that if you encounter this bulldog, you will fall into misfortune. People have seen shadow figures zipping along the walls of the castle. People have seen full body apparitions. A woman in an old dress is seen, and the locals believe that this is the Holloko Castle Witch. Balint Kovacs, a tourist was sitting on a chair inside the castle and Balint glanced down at his feet and there was a frog. The frog hopped around for a bit and then disappeared.

The Holloko Castle Witch story originated from the story that the Kacsics noble family kidnapped a beautiful maiden from a neighboring village and imprisoned her within one of its cold stone cells. Unfortunately for the nobleman, the girl's nanny was a witch, and she made a pact with the devil to free her mistress. The devil commanded his sons to assume the form of ravens each night and steal stones from the castle until the girl was set free. Today the town of Holloko echoes this fairy tale; its Hungarian name translates to "raven stone" and the road leading to the village is marked with a bronze statue of a raven perched on a rock outcropping. The Holloko Castle Witch will always be with this castle says Paloma Adam. Paloma feels that the witch protects the castle. Ravens have been seen descending upon the castle on certain days, just before dark.

Istvan Molnar, a local historian says that another ghost story that is associated with this castle, is the story of the Headless Black Horse. If you have committed any heinous sin, a headless black horse will appear. As soon as you look upon the headless black horse, you will be cursed and fall deathly ill. Many misfortunes will fall upon you, that can be so bad, it could lead to your demise. Reka Barta, a ghost hunter says that many paranormal investigators visit the castle to experience the paranormal. Reka says that the castle will always be mysterious and intriguing.

Haunted Bonaire & Curacao Islands

By Paul Dale Roberts

I have been to Aruba island in search of Natalee Holloway's ghost. I captured an EVP of a woman saying…"please help me". I captured this along the beach. I had some Arubians show me where they thought Natalee was killed at. I wanted to head over to Bonaire and Curacao islands, but did not have the time to get over to these 2 islands. I talked with my ex-brother-in-law Crazy Jeff Voshell who is the Captain of his own boat called the "Orion". It is said in Saint Thomas that Captain Crazy Jeff was the inspiration for the movie Captain Ron. Crazy Jeff was everything you would think a sailor would be like. Crazy Jeff was obnoxious and in-your-face type of sailor. He provided cruises to other nearby islands with his boat the Orion. Captain Crazy Jeff also would work on Morgan Freeman's boat. Below, is some information that Captain Crazy Jeff provided me of the OTHER ABC islands.

The island of Bonaire is the subject of ghost stories, though these are local myths and legends, not confirmed hauntings. The "Ghost of Washikemba" is one such tale, focusing on the abandoned Washikemba plantation, where locals and visitors report apparitions and strange occurrences. There are no verified reports of genuine hauntings, but the legends contribute to Bonaire's mystique.
Legends and Myths

- The Ghost of Washikemba:

This is the most prominent ghost story on the island, concerning the old Washikemba aloe plantation house. It's said to be haunted by the spirits of its past residents and is a popular spot for those interested in the supernatural.

There are reports and local lore about Curaçao being haunted, particularly regarding ghost stories in Willemstad and the uninhabited island of Klein Curaçao, which is known for its shipwrecks and ruins. Some individuals and travel sources suggest that visiting certain locations might provide an eerie or "haunted" experience.

Haunted Locations and Lore

- Klein Curaçao:

This uninhabited island is described as a "ghost island" due to its history of shipwrecks and the presence of a haunting, abandoned lighthouse.

- Willemstad:

Locals have whispered ghost stories in the capital city, with some sources mentioning the potential for "vestigial remains" of past residents in older buildings.

- Haunted House (Weg is hier afgesloten):

A specific landmark in Willemstad is marketed as a haunted house, offering tours that delve into its history and associated ghost stories, according to Evendo.

Why the Island May Be Considered Haunted

- History:

The presence of a long history of residents, along with potential violent events in the past, is cited as a reason for ghostly phenomena.

- Atmosphere:

The isolated, remote nature of places like Klein Curaçao, with its shipwrecks and crumbling lighthouse, contributes to a haunting atmosphere.

Is the Shaolin Temple at Henan Province Haunted?

By Paul Dale Roberts

My uncle Jose Causing, during his time with the Merchant Marines visited areas of Asia. One of the places that he visited was the Shaolin Temple in the Henan Province. I asked Jose if he thought that Shaolin Temple was haunted. He flat out said…"no intelligent energy is at the Shaolin Temple. There is some residual energy, but that is about it." Note: Jose and my mother had psychic abilities. I went on the Internet and this is what I found about any possible haunting activity at the Shaolin Temple. It appears that Jose was correct.

The primary Shaolin Temple is located in Henan province, not Hunan, and it is not generally regarded as haunted in the traditional sense. However, as with many historic and religious sites in China and elsewhere, folklore and ghost stories do exist, particularly regarding periods of conflict and destruction.
Here's what is known about the Shaolin Temple and ghost stories:

- Wrong location: The world-famous Shaolin Temple is located at the foot of Mount Song in Dengfeng, Henan province. There is no famous "Shaolin Temple" in Hunan province. However, legends of a Southern Shaolin Temple, possibly in Fujian province, exist in folklore and wuxia fiction.
- Martial arts folklore, not haunting: The tales of ghosts connected to Shaolin usually relate to its martial arts history rather than being traditional ghost stories. The temple was sacked and destroyed multiple times throughout its long history. Legends tell of warrior monks defending the temple and other heroic acts. These dramatic stories, especially those dealing with the temple's destruction by rival forces, have inspired ghost stories and movies.

- Real-world events and fictional lore: The temple was burned down in 1928 by rival warlords, but this had nothing to do with kung fu. It is fictional accounts of temple destruction, often depicted in wuxia films and novels, that are the source of most ghost-like folklore.
- Ghosts in broader Chinese culture: Ghost beliefs are taken seriously in Chinese folklore, with many superstitions and stories surrounding the topic. Chinese culture also has a "Hungry Ghost Festival" during which offerings are made to spirits. In this broader context, it would not be unusual for any ancient site to be associated with ghost stories, whether or not the legends are widely publicized.

This book is dedicated to my Chihuahua “Champagne Stinson/Roberts” and my Shih Tzu “Ire Stinson/Roberts”.

Haunted Portland, Oregon and Investigating The Murder Sites of The Lust Killer and the Green River Killer

By Judy Raderchak - Senior Lead Investigator
Paul Dale Roberts - HPI General Manager
www.hpiparanormal.net

HPI was planning a trip to Haunted Las Vegas to check out this tour:
http://www.hauntedvegastours.com/

This Haunted Las Vegas tour, seems like a lot of fun, but with HPI we sometimes make changes and this time we decided to change it up a bit, instead of going South, towards the hot Nevada desert (we did this already with our trip to Area 51)...we decided to go to colder elements, heading for the North - Portland, Oregon to be exact.

I have been to Las Vegas and I had a blast in Vegas and always remembered..."what happens in Vegas, stays in Vegas". But, what if we go to Portland...would that same advice work? What happens in Portland, stays in Portland? Well, who knows...we can only find out and I know it will be adventurous!

I will be renting a car and I will be bringing 4 investigators with me. Right now, I have Judy Raderchak and Regina Tellez riding with me. Any HPI investigators that wish to tag along with us, please bring snacks, lots of snacks. Also, be ready to pay your driver gas money, if you are carpooling.

WHEN ARE WE LEAVING?
January 15, 2011, Sunday at 8:00am from my home:

Built beneath the immense Fremont Bridge in a style that was common in the year of 1899, this hotel stands as a popular location for leisure, as well as spiritual activity. While a number of popular figures have frequented this popular hotel, many of those that are interested in the paranormal have been naturally attracted to this location. Here, I will share some of the spooky tales from the most haunted hotel in Portland, The White Eagle Pub – where you can get more than a drink and a place to stay!

The Haunting Tales

The first haunting tale surrounds the owners of the haunted hotel. They were working in the area that is upstairs immediately after they made the purchase. They decided to rest and have a bite to eat, and sat down in the upstairs hall. Nearly immediately, all of the doors in the hall opened. I am not talking slightly, either, they slammed open! It was then that they heard the frightening cry of a woman coming from the room at their very opposite end of the hall. Immediately, the two owners got out of dodge. Shortly thereafter, they locked the access to the upstairs area, never to let anyone else up there.

There have been many visitors, and even the current owners, have heard the sounds of crying, people walking, and various other sounds. These are most common near the area where the stage is, but these individuals can tell that the sounds are coming from the upper level of The White Eagle Pub. Many people have wanted to visit the top floor, but the owner insists that he will not allow anyone in the area – not only due to the fact that it can make for a very frightening experience, but for the fact that he strongly feels as if someone may become injured in one way or another based on the simple fact that the spirits seem to be quite powerful, and appear as if they want to be left alone.

It is believed that there is a spirit that walks on the main floor, and visits the basement area quite frequently. This spirit has been deemed with the name of “Barney”. It is unknown as to whether this is a residual haunting, or an intelligent haunting, but the presence of this apparition is apparent regardless of the type of haunting he is. He does seem to be benevolent, and does not seem to do more than catching guests off guard and stir their emotions up a little bit.

Conclusion

If you are in the mood to experience some true fright, you may want to visit the most haunted hotel in Portland, Oregon, The White Eagle Pub – where you are served more than just fresh brew!

JERRY BRUDOS, THE LUST KILLER:
HPI will be investigating the murder sites of serial killer Jerry Brudos, The Lust Killer. He terrorized Portland, Oregon from 1968 to 1969. This odd man with a shoe fetish and a practicioner of necroplhilia brought Portland to their knees during his two year killing spree. There should be a lot of negative residual haunting activity at these murder sites and we will be there to investigate those crime scenes!
More on Jerry Brudos here:

GARY LEON RIDGWAY - GREEN RIVER KILLER
I guess, we better not forget Gary Leon Ridgway aka The Green River Killer, supposingly he killed 2 women in the Portland, Oregon corridor. So, we should look at his crime scenes too. That's killing two birds...I mean two serial killers in a row!

So, HPI members, if you are ready to do some investigating in Portland, let's do it this in January of 2012! Let Portland know that HPI is in the house!

OTHER HPI NEWS, UPDATES AND GOSSIP!

Judy Raderchak, Researcher Gears Up for Some Upcoming HPI Investigations!

Judy shares this information for our upcoming investigations:
Here is History of Maidu Indians, Sutter, and information about Voodoo

Roseville in the Pre-1850-

300,000 Native Americans inhabited California, those of seven linguistic families. One of these families was the Maidu Indians, whose territory was the Sacramento River. One important Maidu center was along the banks of Strap Ravine, east of downtown Roseville, which is now known as Johnson Ranch. Another Maidu town in the Roseville area centered along Dry Creek adjacent to the old Enwood gravel pit, which extended downstream to where the Lincoln Estates subdivision is now located. There is a total of 15 acres dedicated to the Maidu Indians which are now reserved as parks. Their most important structure was an earthen-covered ceremonial Roundhouse - a rounded structure 30 to 40 feet in diameter. The Roundhouse served as the spiritual and healing center for the community.

Others in Roseville

Miners flocked to California for the gold. One settler lived in the Dry Creek District was Martin A. Schellhouse. He raised stock and grew many vineyards in search of agricultural persuade. The Apple orchard vineyards were the first among the Oak trees that grew in western Placer County. Sic generations had born and died in the Roseville area. Around the same time Thomas S. Dudley came to town engaged in business in Sacramento he head to Dry creek to raise his hogs while ensure another 320 acres. In 1879 his family home burned to the ground shortly after his death.

Josiah Gould's arrival in Roseville (1855), Tobias S. Grider acquired 640 acres of government owned land where Roseville's railroad switching facilities would later be located. .Grider sold his properties to the California Central Railroad in 1859 when it was in the process of extending the iron rails from Folsom to Lincoln. The story continues…http://www.roseville.ca.us/visit_roseville/history_of_roseville/1850s.asp

Sutter

The HOME- Built in 1984

Sutter Founded by-John Augustus Sutter

Sutter County was one of the original counties of California.

Early 1800's, the area now known as Sutter County was inhabited by the native Maidu Indians. Spanish expeditions were in search of mission sites, and fur trappers lured by the abundant wildlife, traveled through Sutter 1841. The bulk of the territory was deeded by the Mexican Government to the County's namesake, John Sutter. Established in 1842, John Sutter's Hock Farm was the first large-scale agricultural settlement in Northern California, composed of grain, cattle, orchards and vineyards.

Information about Voodoo- (This is only brief information on the subject.)

-Vodouisants(as they are called) believe in a supreme being called Bondye,(meaning Supreme God) but also worship many lesser spirits, as the loa(Saints).

-Houngans (Male Vodou Priest) or Mambos (Female Vodou Priest) are usually people who were chosen by the dead ancestors and received the divination from the deities while he or she was possessed.

-A "bokor" is a sorcerer or magician who casts spells upon request both light and dark.

Different types of Voodoo

-Haitian Vodou-riginates in the Caribbean country of Haiti, ased upon a merging of the beliefs and practices of West African peoples

Haitian Vodou shares many traits with other faiths of the African diaspora, including the Louisiana Voodoo of New Orleans, Santería and Arará of Cuba, and Candomblé and Umbanda of Brazil. A Haitian Vodou temple is called an Hounfour. brought by enslaved West Africans, specifically from the Ewe, Fon, Mina, Kabaye, and Nago groups

New Orleans Voodoo, describes a set of underground religious practices which originated from the traditions of the African diaspora Santería- is a system of beliefs that merges the Yoruba religion (which was brought to the New World by slaves imported to the Caribbean to work the sugar plantations) with Roman Catholic and Native Indian traditions

The English transliteration voodoo has acquired negative connotations, and is therefore often avoided by scholars and practitioners in preference to the Haitian form vodou.

There is much to learn when voodoo is involved. It is not something that you choose,it is something that chooses you and those who wish to practice it should do so under supervision of an elder.
